U, oo, Is the twenty-third letter in the Castilian alphabet; it loses its sound after q and g, and becomes a liquid, except where it is followed by an a, as in guarismo, or when marked with a diæresis, as in agüero, when it retains its proper sound. The letters b, v, and u were formerly used as equivalent to each other in writing or printing. Example: Las cosas de Perpiñan estauan en mucha quietra, por auer quitado vn gouernador, que tratana bien la ciudad. (Comentarios de Herrera, Madrid, 1624.) This observation will prevent many mistakes in reading. Each of these letters is at present restricted to its own proper sound, and particular care should be taken not to confound them, as they differ both in sound and in import; as, él desuela, he unpaves; él desvela, he keeps others awake.

U', oo, A conjunction disjunctive, used in the place of ó, to avoid cacophony (before o or ho); as, plata ú oro, Silver or gold; víctima ú hocausto, A victim or a holocaust.

X.

X, ay'-kis, sf. This letter is pronounced like cs or gs in English; the Castilians give it constantly only the sound of cs; in the other kingdoms or provinces both sounds are indifferently used. When it is the last letter of a word it has a guttural sound, like that of the Spanish j (the German ch in Ich), as in carcax (quiver); but such words are no longer written with x, but with j; thus, reloj (watch), formerly relox. As this sound is rather difficult to utter, words ending with j are pronounced either by dropping that letter, or sounding it like cs; thus, reló or relocs. To give this letter its true guttural sound is considered by many as an affectation.—X had formerly two distinct sounds; one like cs, which was indicated by a circumflex accent over the vowel that followed the x, and the other guttural, like an English h very strongly aspirated, in which case the vowel was unaccented; thus, próximo (adj. proximate, next), and próximo (s., a fellow-being): the first was pronounced proc'-se-mo, and the second, pro'-he-mo. This rule must be kept in mind when reading. At present, all those words in which the x has a guttural sound are written with G or J, which the scholar is requested to consult. It is becoming a fashion, particularly in America, for want of proper instruction, to pronounce and write s instead of x in the greater number of words beginning with ex; thus, esámen, esperiencia, &c.: but this use is not supported by the old Castilians and educated persons.

Y, The twenty-sixth letter of the Castilian alphabet, stands as a vowel and a consonant. Y, when alone, or after a vowel, and followed by a consonant, or at the end of a word, is a vowel, and sounds as e or ee in English: Hoy y mañana (To-day and to-morrow), o'-e ee mah-nyah'-nah.—Y, before a vowel in the same syllable, or between two vowels in the same word, is a consonant, and sounds like the English j, though somewhat softer; in some provinces it is constantly pronounced like ee. Of late attempts have been made to revive the old fashion of writing i instead of y at the end of words, and when it is a conjunction; thus, estoi, doi, i, &c., in place of estoy, doy, y. Words formerly written with y before a consonant, as reyna, peyne, have changed it into i; thus, reina, peine. In Spanish manuscript, capital Y is to be used instead of capital I.

Y, ee, conj. And. It is frequently used in interrogatives, or by way of a reply; as, Y tú, no haces lo mismo? And you, do you not do the same? Y tú, donde has estado? And thou, where hast thou been? Y bien? And well then? Y que tenemos con eso? And what is that to us? or, And what of all that? Generally it is a copulative conjunction; as, Alfonso, Fernando, y Manuel, Alphonsus, Ferdinand, and Emmanuel. When the conjunction y is followed by a word beginning with i or hi, the conjunction é is used in its stead; as, Sabiduría é ignorancia, Wisdom and ignorance. Padre é hijo, Father and son.

NOT THE SAME IN THE ENGLISH AND SPANISH LANGUAGES.

N. B.—Words derived from the names of countries, towns, &c., may be taken as substantives or adjectives; as, American, Americano, which means a native of America, or things relating to America. Therefore, and in order to avoid useless repetition, only the English word corresponding to the Spanish, or the periphrasis native of, is annexed to it. The scholar may easily find out whether the noun is taken substantively or adjectively. He is also to keep in mind that this kind of nouns, if they terminate in o, change it into a for the feminine, and add a when they end in a consonant; as, Italiano, Italiana; Andaluz, Andaluza; Ingles, Inglesa, &c.

SINÓPSIS

ALFABETO.

Las letras que componen el alfabeto ingles son veintiseis, á saber:—

a, b, c, d, e, f, g, h, i, j, k, l, m, n, o, p, q, r, s, t, u, v, w, x, y, z.

Las vocales son a, e, i, o, u, y algunas veces w, y. Las consonantes son todas las demas.

[Para los sonidos de las letras inglesas, véase la "Introduccion" que sigue esta á Sinópsis.]

PARTES DE LA ORACION.

Las partes de la oracion son diez, á saber: The Article (el Artículo), the Noun ó Substantive (el Nombre ó Sustantivo), the Adjective (el Adjetivo), the Pronoun (el Pronombre), the Verb (el Verbo), the Participle (el Participio), the Adverb (el Adverbio), the Preposition (la Preposicion), the Conjunction (la Conjuncion), y the Interjection (la Interjeccion).

DE LOS ARTÍCULOS.

Los Artículos son dos, a ó an (un, una), y the (el, los; la, las; lo, etc.).

A se usa delante de consonante: como, a man (un hombre); y an delante de vocal ó h muda: como, an age (un siglo), an hour (una hora).

The se usa delante de nombres en ámbos números: como, The man (el hombre), the men (los hombres).

A se llama artículo indefinido, porque no se refiere á ninguna persona ó cosa en particular: como, a president (un presidente). The se llama artículo definido, porque se refiere siempre á una persona ó cosa en particular: como, "The President of the United States" (El Presidente de los Estados Unidos).

El artículo a se pone delante de los nombres de peso, medida, número; los de oficios, empleos, dignidades, y en las exclamaciones, aunque no se usa en español: como, "Tea is sold at a dollar a pound" (El té se vende á peso la libra). "He has a sister who is a widow, and a brother who is a captain" (El tiene una hermana viuda, y un hermano que es capitan). "He is an American" (El es Americano). "What a beautiful woman!" (¡Qué hermosa mujer!)

El artículo definido castellano, delante de un nombre comun, tomado en toda la extension de su significado, no se traduce en ingles: v. g., "Man is mortal" (El hombre es mortal); pero si el sustantivo solo designa una especie, aunque tomado en un sentido general, se expresa: v. g., "The negro is our brother" (El negro es nuestro hermano).

Cuando un nombre propio precede al de la dignidad, cargo, etc., no admite el artículo en ingles: v. g., "General Washington was the first President" (El General Washington fué el primer Presidente). El artículo se omite tambien en ingles, cuando se repite delante de varios sustantivos continuados: v. g., "The father, mother, and children are sick" (El padre, la madre y los niños están enfermos). Tampoco se traduce cuando precede á los nombres Señor ó Señora (Mr. ó Mrs.), seguidos de un nombre propio: v. g., "Have you seen Mr. or Mrs. N.?" (¿Ha visto V. al Señor ó á la Señora N.?)

DEL NOMBRE Ó SUSTANTIVO.

El Nombre se divide en comun y propio.

Nombre comun es el que conviene á muchas cosas: como, city (ciudad), man (hombre).

Nombre propio es el que conviene á una cosa sola: como, London (Lóndres), Peter (Pedro).

DEL GÉNERO.

Los géneros son tres: masculino, femenino, y neutro.

Todo nombre de varon, ó animal macho, es masculino; todo nombre de mujer, ó animal hembra, es femenino; todos los nombres de cosas inanimadas son del género neutro.

Hay nombres que distinguen el género por una palabra diferente: v. g., brother (hermano), sister (hermana); otros le expresan por medio de la terminacion: v. g., lion (leon), lioness (leona); y otros que le distinguen por medio de las palabras male ó female: como, "A male child" (un niño), "a female child" (una niña); man ó maid: como, "A man-servant" (un criado), "a maid-servant" (una criada); cock ó hen: como, "A cock sparrow" (un gorrion), "a hen sparrow" (la hembra del gorrion); he ó she: como, "A he-bear" (un oso), "a she-bear" (una osa).—(Véase El Método de Ollendorff para aprender el Ingles, por PALENZUELA y CARREÑO, páginas 341 y 342.)

DEL NÚMERO.

El plural se forma generalmente añadiendo una s al singular: v. g., guide (guia), guides (guias); book (libro), books (libros).

Los nombres acabados en ch (cuando suena como en castellano), ó en ss, x ú o, precedida de consonante, forman el plural añadiendo es al singular: v. g., church (iglesia), churches (iglesias); kiss (beso), kisses (besos); fox (zorra), foxes (zorras); hero (héroe), heroes (héroes); pero si la ch suena como k, añaden solamente s: v. g., monarch (monarca), monarchs (monarcas).

Los terminados en y, precedida de una vocal, siguen la regla general: v. g., day (dia), days (dias); pero si la precede una consonante, la mudan en i y añaden es: v. g., fly (mosca), flies (moscas); lady (señora), ladies (señoras).

Los nombres que acaban en f ó fe mudan estas letras en v y añaden es: v. g., leaf (hoja), leaves (hojas); life (vida), lives (vidas). Se exceptuan chief (jefe), dwarf (enano), handkerchief (pañuelo de mano), etc., y tambien muff (manguito), que forman el plural añadiendo s.

Hay algunos nombres cuyos plurales son irregulares: v. g., man (hombre), men (hombres); foot (pié), feet (piés), etc.—(Véase el dicho "Método," página 344 y siguientes, en el cual se hallarán listas de los Nombres que solo se usan en singular, ó vice versa.)

DE LOS CASOS DE LOS NOMBRES.

Los Casos son tres: The Nominative (el Nominativo), the Possessive ó Genitive (el Posesivo ó Genetivo), y the Objective ó Accusative (el Objetivo ó Acusativo).

El Nominativo y el Objetivo se distinguen solo por su colocacion en la frase: v. g., "The father loves the son" (El padre ama al hijo); "The son loves the father" (El hijo ama al padre).

El Posesivo denota posesion, y se forma invirtiendo el órden y poniendo primero en Ingles el nombre que es último en Español, despues del cual se pone un apóstrofo y la letra s: v. g., "My father's house" (La casa de mi padre); "The boy's hat" (El sombrero del muchacho). Cuando los plurales terminan en s, el Posesivo se forma añadiendo solamente el apóstrofo: como, "My brothers' horse" (El caballo de mis hermanos). Viniendo mas de dos sustantivos continuados, el apóstrofo y la s se ponen á cada uno de ellos: v. g., "The captain's son's servant's horse" (El caballo del criado del hijo del capitan). Con el apóstrofo y la s ('s) se indica tambien el lugar, sitio ó casa en donde se ha hecho alguna cosa: v. g., "He supped last night at your sister's" (house, sobreentendido), (El cenó anoche en casa de la hermana de V.)

DE LOS ADJETIVOS.

Los Adjetivos en ingles no admiten variacion de género ni número: v. g., "A prudent man" (un hombre prudente), "prudent men" (hombres prudentes); "a prudent woman" (una mujer prudente), "prudent women" (mujeres prudentes); y se colocan generalmente ántes del sustantivo: v. g., "He wishes warm water" (El quiere agua caliente).

La sola variacion que admiten, es la de los grados de comparacion. Estos son Positivo, Comparativo y Superlativo.

El comparativo de aumento se forma por medio del adverbio more (mas), seguido de than (que): v. g., wise (sabio); "more wise than he" (mas sabio que él). Tambien se forma añadiendo una r á los monosílabos que acaban en e, ó er á los que terminan en otra letra: v. g., wiser (mas sabio); black (negro), blacker ó more black (mas negro).

El comparativo de inferioridad ó diminucion se forma por medio del adverbio less (ménos), ó less than (ménos de ó que): v. g., "He is less rich than she" (El es ménos rico que ella).

El comparativo de igualdad con los adjetivos se expresa con los adverbios as . . . . (tan . . . .), as (como); ó not less . . . . (no ménos . . . .) than (que): v. g., "He is as generous as she" (El es tan generoso como ella); "She is not less generous than he" (Ella no es ménos generosa que él).

El comparativo de igualdad con los sustantivos se expresa por tanto, tanta, as ó so much, en singular; y por tantos, tantas, as many, en plural, y el como siguiente por as: v. g., "She has as much gold as silver" (Ella tiene tanto oro como plata); "He has as many dogs as horses" (El tiene tantos perros como caballos).

El Superlativo se forma con los adverbios very (muy), most ó least, y tambien añadiendo st á los acabados en e, ó est á los terminados en otras letras.

Cuando el positivo acaba en y la muda en i, y á esta añade las letras er para el comparativo, y est para el superlativo: v. g., dry (seco), drier ó more dry (mas seco), driest (sequísimo), very dry (muy seco.)

Who se aplica á personas: como, "The boy who" (el muchacho que).

Which se aplica á animales irracionales y á cosas: como, "The dog which barks" (el perro que ladra); "the book which was lost" (el libro que se perdió).

That se emplea frecuentemente en vez de who ó which: como, "The boy that reads" (el muchacho que lée); "the book that was lost" (el libro que seperdió).

What es un relativo compuesto, el cual comprende tanto el relativo simple como el antecedente: como, "This is what I wanted; es decir, the thing which I wanted" (esto es lo que yo queria).

Pronombres Adjetivos.

Observacion.—His y her son pronombres posesivos, cuando preceden inmediatamente al nombre; pero cuando vienen solos, his es el caso posesivo del pronombre personal he, y her el objetivo de she.

DEL VERBO.

Los Verbos son de tres clases: Activos ó transitivos, Pasivos, y Neutros ó intransitivos.

Verbo activo ó transitivo es aquel cuya accion recae sobre algun objeto: como, "James strikes the table" (Jaime golpea la mesa).

Verbo pasivo es el que representa una accion como sufrida ó recibida por algun sujeto: como, "The table was struck" (la mesa fué golpeada).

Verbo neutro ó intransitivo es el que expresa la existencia ó el estado de los seres, ó una accion que no pasa del sujeto: como, "I am here" (yo estoy aquí); "he sleeps" (él duerme); "I run" (yo corro).

Divídese el verbo, por razon de su forma, en Regular, Irregular y Defectivo.

Verbo regular es el que forma su Imperfecto y Pretérito de Indicativo (Indicative Imperfect) y su Participio Pasivo (Past Participle) agregando d ó ed al Presente (Present); como, love (amo); *lov*ed (amaba, amé); *lov*ed (amado).

Verbo irregular es el que se separa de la regla establecida en el párrafo anterior: como, write (escribo); wrote (escribia, escribí); written (escrito).

Llámase verbo defectivo el que carece de alguno de sus tiempos y personas; á cuya clase pertenecen la mayor parte de los Auxiliares y todos los Impersonales.

De los Modos y Tiempos del Verbo.

Los verbos tienen cuatro modos: á saber, Infinitivo, Indicativo, Imperativo, y Subjuntivo ó Potencial.

Los tiempos del verbo son seis: á saber, el Presente, el Imperfecto y Pretérito, el Perfecto Próximo, el Pluscuamperfecto, el Futuro y el Futuro Anterior.

Formacion de los Tiempos del Verbo.

El Presente del Infinitivo es como la raiz de que nacen y se forman los demas tiempos y personas, y se distingue por la preposicion to: v. g., to admire (admirar); to abandon (abandonar). Cuando el presente del infinitivo se usa solo, siempre debe estar precedido de dicha preposicion.

El Gerundio, que en Ingles es Participio Presente, se forma añadiendo la terminacion ing al presente del infinitivo, el cual, en este caso, omite la preposicion to, y tambien la e, si acaba en esta letra: v. g., to admire (admirar), admir*ing* (admirando); to abandon (abandonar), abandon*ing* (abandonando).

El Participio Pasivo de los verbos regulares se forma añadiendo una d al infinitivo de los que terminan en e, y ed á los que acaban en otra letra: v. g., to admire (admirar), admir*ed* (admirado); to abandon (abandonar), abandon*ed* (abandonado). Si el infinitivo acaba en y, precedida de una vocal, añade ed: v. g., to pray (suplicar), pray*ed* (suplicado); pero si es una consonante que precede la y, la convierte en i y añade ed: v. g., to satisfy (satisfacer), satisf*ied* (satisfecho).

Presente del Indicativo.—La primera persona singular, y la primera, segunda y tercera persona plural del Presente del Indicativo son lo mismo que el presente de infinitivo, sin la preposicion to; pero en su lugar deben expresar el pronombre correspondiente: v. g., to admire (admirar); I admire, we admire, you admire, they admire (yo admiro, tú admiras, él admira). Se exceptua de esta regla el verbo to be.

La segunda persona singular del Presente del Indicativo se forma añadiendo st al presente del infinitivo de los acabodos en e, ó est á los que no terminan en esta letra: v. g., to admire (admirar), thou admir*est* (tú admiras); to abandon (abandonar), thou abandon*est* (tú abandonas). Si el infinitivo acaba en y, precedida de vocal, se añade est; y si de consonante, muda la y en i, y añade est: v. g., to pray (suplicar), thou pray*est* (suplicas); to cry (gritar), thou cr*iest* (gritas).

La tercera persona singular del Presente del Indicativo se forma añadiendo una s al presente del infinitivo: v. g., to love (amar), he love*s* (el ama); to abandon (abandonar), he abandon*s* (él abandona). Excepciones.—Cuando el infinitivo acaba en o, ch, sh, ss, th, x ó z, se añade es: v. g., to go (ir), he go*es* (él va); to beseech (suplicar), he beseech*es* (él suplica), etc. Si el verbo acaba en y precedida de una consonante, la convierte en i y añade es; pero si viene despues de vocal, añade s solamente: v. g., to reply (replicar), he repl*ies* (él replica); to pay (pagar), he pay*s* (él paga).

El Imperfecto y Pretérito del indicativo de los verbos regulares es lo mismo que su participio pasivo: v. g., to promise (prometer), promis*ed* (prometido), I promis*ed* (yo prometia ó prometí): excepto la segunda persona singular, que añade st: v. g., thou promised*st* (tú prometiste). Si el infinitivo acaba en y precedida de consonante, la muda en i y añade ed; pero si no, la retiene y añade ed: v. g., to reply (replicar), I repl*ied* (yo replicaba ó repliqué); to delay (dilatar), I delay*ed* (yo dilataba ó dilaté).

El Futuro, cuando significa simplemente una accion por venir, se forma por medio del auxiliar shall prefijado al infinitivo, sin la partícula to, en las primeras personas, y will en las demas. Pero cuando indica promesa, deseo vehemente, mando ó amenaza, se expresa por medio de will en las primeras personas, y de shall en las demas, exceptuando las segundas singulares, que se expresan por wilt y shalt: v. g., "Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor" (No levantarás falso testimonio contra tu prójimo).

El Presente del Modo Subjuntivo ó Potencial se forma por medio de los auxiliares may ó can, prefijados al infinitivo sin la partícula to: v. g., "I may write" (yo puedo escribir ó yo escriba).

El Imperfecto del Subjuntivo ó Potencial se forma por medio de los auxiliares might, could, would ó should, segun su respectiva significacion, prefijados al infinitivo sin la partícula to: v. g., to sell (vender), "I would sell" (yo querria vender ó yo venderia).—(Véase el "Método" citado de Ollendorff, pág. 352 y siguientes).

Los Tiempos Compuestos se forman, como en Castellano, por medio del auxiliar to have (haber), seguido del participio pasivo del verbo principal: v. g., I have armed (he armado); I had armed (yo habia ó hube armado); I shall have armed (yo habré armado); I may have armed (yo haya armado); I might, could, would, ó should have armed (yo hubiera, habria ó hubiese armado).

Los que están marcados con una R indican que pueden formarse de la manera regular: v. g., to work (trabajar); he workea ó wrought (él trabajó); he has worked ó wrought (él ha trabajado); en cuyo caso se prefiere esta.

DEL ADVERBIO.

Los Adverbios de modo ó calidad, que en Castellano se forman añadiendo la terminacion mente al adjetivo, se expresan en Ingles por medio de la sílaba ly añadida al mismo: v. g., wise (sabio), wise*ly* (sabia*mente*); dear (caro), dear*ly* (cara*mente*).

Los Adverbios admiten los grados de comparacion, y los expresan con las mismas letras que los adjetivos: v. g., near (cerca), *near*er (mas cerca), *the near*est (lo mas cerca).

En Ingles no se puede usar mas de una negativa; y así, No quiero nada se traduce, "I want nothing."

(Véase la lista de los Adverbios mas comunes en el "Método de Ollendorff," página 367.)

DE LA PREPOSICION.

Hay un gran número de verbos en Ingles que están acompañados de ciertas Preposiciones, que son como una parte de ellos, entran en su significacion y se la hacen variar: v. g., "To pack away ó off" (Huirse, tomar las de Villadiego); "to pack off" (Morir).

(Véanse las Preposiciones mas comunes en el "Método de Ollendorff," página 369.)

DE LA CONJUNCION.

Las Conjunciones se dividen en Ingles, como en Español, en copulativas y disyuntivas.

Copulativas son las que enlazan simplemente unas palabras con otras, y las oraciones entre sí: v. g., "Peter and John will speak" (Pedro y Juan hablarán); "Wisdom and ignorance are opposites" (sabiduría é ignorancia son cosas opuestas).

Disyuntivas son las que significan division ó alternativa entre las cosas: v. g., "I speak neither English, French, Spanish, nor German" (Yo no hablo ni ingles, ni frances, ni español, ni aleman).

(Para las Conjunciones mas comunes, véase el "Método de Ollendorff," página 370.)

DE LA INTERJECCION.

La Interjeccion es una palabra que sirve para expresar los varios afectos del ánimo, ó para llamar la atencion: como, "Oh, what a beautiful creature!" (¡Oh, qué linda criatura!) "See!" (¡Mira!)

(Véase la lista de Interjecciones en el 'Método de Ollendorff," página 371.)

OBSERVACIONES SOBRE ALGUNAS REGLAS DE LA SINTÁXIS.

Cuando los poseedores de una misma cosa son dos ó mas, el apóstrofo y la s se ponen solo despues del último: v. g., "The father and son's house" (La casa del padre y del hijo); "John and Henry's book" (El libro de Juan y de Enrique).

Dos ó mas sustantivos singulares, regidos por las conjunciones either — or, neither — nor, rigen el verbo, el adjetivo y el pronombre en singular: v. g., "Either Peter or John is guilty" (ó Pedro ó Juan son culpados); "Neither time nor distance is able to diminish our friendship" (ni el tiempo ni la distancia son capaces de disminuir nuestra amistad).

La preposicion to, que designa el infinitivo, se omite frecuentemente despues de los verbos to bid, dare, need, make, see, hear, let, y los auxiliares may, can, will, shall, must y sus pretéritos: v. g., "I dare say" (Me atrevo á decir).

Los verbos que significan esperar, mandar, desear etc., rigen el siguiente al presente de infinitivo con preferencia al perfecto del mismo: v. g., "I found him better than I expected to find him," y no "to have found him" (Le hallé mejor de lo que yo esperaba hallarle, y no haberle hallado).

El Participio de presente ingles (Gerundio español) se traduce en el presente de infinitivo, con la misma preposicion, excepto cuando esta es by, en cuyo caso se omite, y el participio se traduce por el gerundio: v. g., "The taking from another what is his, without his permission, is called stealing" (El tomar de otro lo que es suyo, sin su permiso, se llama robar); "John was sent to prepare the way by preaching repentance" (Juan fué enviado para preparar el camino predicando la penitencia).

Algunas conjunciones requieren el indicativo y otras el subjuntivo; en general, cuando el sentido es contingente ó dudoso se debe usar del último: v. g., "If I were to write, he would not do it" (Si yo le escribiera, él no lo haria); "He will not be pardoned unless he repent" (El no será perdonado, á ménos que se arrepienta).

LA PRONUNCIACION DE LA LENGUA INGLESA.

1. Al aprender la pronunciacion de una lengua extranjera, es de la mayor importancia poder distinguir los sonidos ó elementos, que forman las voces de nuestra propia lengua; es decir, analizar las voces en sus elementos ó menores partes. Estos sonidos, elementos ó menores partes de las voces son lo que representamos por medio de las letras. A estas les damos nombre, y hablamos de ellas por el que les hemos asignado. Con todo, el nombre de una letra no es siempre su sonido; y esta diferencia debe observarse atentamente, á fin de comprender lo que se quiere dar á entender por los sonidos ó elementos de la habla. Por ejemplo, el nombre de esta letra h es ache en castellano; pero sucede que de los tres sonidos que ha tenido, el de f le ha perdido, el aspirado lo usan solo les inteligentes, y bien educados, y el gutural se oye entre el vulgo, particularmente en algunas provincias; en consecuencia de lo cual esta letra no tiene en el día sonido ninguno, así es que haz, hebra, hidalgo, hora, humor, se pronuncian exactamente como si estuviesen escritas az, ebra, idalgo, ora, umor. La letra h está escrita en estas voces, se presenta á los ojos, tiene nombre, y se la conoce por este nombre, pero no representa ningun sonido, como lo hacen las otras letras de las dichas palabras.

Estas letras que no representan algun sonido se llaman en Ingles, Letras calladas, las cuales ocurren en un tan grande número de palabras en esta lengua, que no admiten comparacion con la castellana; á veces se callan dos, tres y aun cuatro letras en una sola palabra, v. g., eight, colleague, weighed, &a., que se pronuncian eit, col-lig, ued, &a.

2. En segundo lugar, á veces se combinan dos ó mas letras para representar un sonido; por ejemplo, en castellano, qu en *qui*ta, gu en si*gue*, representan precisamente los mismos sonidos representados por las letras sencillas c en co*c*re, y g en *g*ato. Esta especie de irregularidad es mucho mas abundante en Ingles que en Español. En esta lengua puede considerarse como perteneciente á la precedente irregularidad; por cuanto la u en las combinaciones qu y gu, en quita, si*gue*, puede considerarse como callada; pero en Ingles se usan estas combinaciones para representar sonidos para los cuales no hay letras simples en su alfabeto; por ejemplo, au en *au*tumn, aw en *aw*ful, y awe en la voz awe, se pronuncian de la misma manera con el sonido de una simple vocal, para el cual no hay letra que la exprese en el alfabeto Ingles. Este sonido está descripto en el N. 1, de las Notas sobre el alfabeto Fonético, que se explicará despues.

3. Ademas, el mismo sonido se representa á veces en diferentes voces por diferentes letras. La j en *j*ugo y la g en *g*inete representan un mismo sonido. Lo propio sucede con la c en *c*elo, y la z en lápi*z*. Esta irregularidad se halla tambien en Ingles con mas abundancia que en castellano.

4. Hay tambien otra irregularidad en la ortografía del Ingles, Frances y otras lenguas, á saber: una misma letra se pronuncia de varias, diferentes maneras, ó en otras palabras, representa sonidos enteramente diferentes, en diferentes palabras: v. g., a suena á veces como e, e como i, o como u, &a. Así en Ingles, lo! (he aquí), se pronuncia precisamente como el pronombre lo en Español; pero do (hacer), se pronuncia du; to (á), tu, &a. Esta irregularidad se extiende tambien muchísimo. En Español sucede lo mismo con la y, la cual como conjuncion se pronuncia como i, v. g., Europa y América, y como consonante cuando hiere alguna vocal, como en *y*erro, *y*ugo.

5. Consideradas todas estas irregularidades, que multiplicadas unas por otras ocurren tan frecuentemente, de una manera ú otra, en la mayor parte de las palabras, casi se puede decir, que las letras inglesas de ninguna manera representan los sonidos del lenguaje, y por consiguiente es en cierto modo imposible hallar la pronunciacion de las palabras por la mera vista de las letras manuscritas ó impresas del modo ordinario. Una cosa es aprender á escribir una palabra, y otra enteramente diferente el saber pronunciarla despues que está escrita. Es tan grande esta dificultad que tanto los Americanos como los Ingleses estan obligados á tener para su uso "Diccionarios de Pronunciacion" con su clave correspondiente; esto es, diccionarios en que las palabras estan impresas, tal cual deben escribirse, y á continuacion las mismas palabras con ciertos signos, que muestran como deben pronunciarse; el método ó sistema con que esto se hace, se denomina clave, la cual no es siempre la misma. Estos son los que se llaman "Diccionarios de Pronunciacion." No los hay en Castellano, porque no se necesitan.

6. La diferencia entre la manera de escribir y la de pronunciar las palabras en Ingles trae su orígen parte de que la lengua Inglesa se ha formado de la mezcla de un grande número de diferentes lenguas; parte de los grandes cambios que han ocurrido en el método de pronunciar muchas palabras durante muchos siglos.

miéntras que el método de escribirlas no ha cambiado á proporcion; pero principalmente á causa de haber adoptado el alfabeto Romano para representar el Ingles, que tiene muchos mas sonidos que aquel ó el Latino, y aun mas que el Castellano, y que por tanto no puede representarlos por el alfabeto Romano.

7. Adoptado una vez el método de escribir una lengua hablada por muchos millones de gentes, queda tan completamente establecido que, por mas absurdos que contenga, es sumamente difícil reformarle enteramente, ó aun procurar hacer algunas de las mas necesarias correcciones en él. Esto se puede mostrar fácilmente por las tardías reformas hechas en la Ortografía Castellana, no obstante los remedios propuestos por los célebres Antonio de Nebrija, Mateo Aleman, Juan L. de Velasco, B. X. Paton entre los antiguos, Mayans y Gándara entre los modernos, y últimamente por la Academia Nacional Española. Pero la lengua Inglesa continua á escribirse de una manera tan poco conforme á su pronunciacion, que la explicacion de esta se hace necesaria aun para aquellos que la hablan como lengua materna; de donde ha provenido la multiplicidad de los varios Diccionarios de Pronunciacion para uso de los Ingleses.

8. Recientemente se ha hecho un alfabeto para servir de clave á la pronunciacion de la lengua Inglesa tan superior á todos los sistemas precedentes, que el autor se ha visto obligado á adoptarle en esta parte de su Diccionario. Por su medio y el de las explicaciones que le acompañan se obvian en gran manera las dificultades que ofrece la pronunciacion Inglesa. Llámase Fonotipia ó alfabeto Fonético, es decir, alfabeto que representa los sonidos. Este contiene cuarenta letras en vez de veintiseis, que es el número del alfabeto comun Ingles; porque realmente hay cuarenta distintos sonidos en esta lengua. En la Fonotipia hay siempre un solo sonido para un solo signo ó letra, y un solo signo á un solo sonido. El que quiera aprender á hablar por él deberá principiar procurando entender perfectamente el alfabeto fonético, haciéndose maestro de él, si es que quiere hablar la lengua de manera que pueda distinguir el sonido que cada una de sus letras representa; desentendiéndose enteramente al principio del abecedario comun Ingles. Conseguido esto, se hallará en estado de aprender la pronunciacion de cada palabra, por cuanto cada una está impresa fonotípicamente en la segunda columna, esto es, precisamente como debe pronunciarse. A proporcion que se acostumbre á ver las palabras de la primera columna, ora esten impresas ó escritas, sabrá como hacer uso de ellas segun el alfabeto antiguo, que está generalmente usado, y es como sigue:

El alfabeto Ingles consta de veintiseis letras cuyas figuras y nombres son:

A a	se pronuncia	e	N n	se pronuncia	en
B b	"	bi	O o	"	o
C c	"	si	P p	"	pi
D d	"	di	Q q	"	quiú
E e	"	i	R r	"	ar
F f	"	ef	S s	"	es

J j	"	yé	W w	"	doble iú
K k	"	qué	X x	"	ecs
L l	"	el	Y y	"	uai
M m	"	em	Z z	"	sed

Como estas letras no pueden representar propiamente todos los sonidos de la lengua inglesa, se ha adoptado el siguiente:—

* Fonético, adjetivo con que se califica la escritura en que cada signo ó letra representa un sonido distinto. En el alfabeto comun Ingles la a representa varios sonidos, v. g., man, mane, all; en el fonético estos se distinguen así: man, mān, ol.

NOTAS.

(1) Θ, ɵ. No hay en Castellano sonido que corresponda exactamente al de esta vocal, por cuanto participa de a y o; pero de una manera tan confusa que no puede distinguirse cual de ellas predomina. Este sonido se forma manteniendo el aliento dentro de la boca, y arrojándole contra el cielo de ella. Para aprenderle bien, es necesario oir pronunciar por un Americano ó un Ingles la voz all (todo), cual fonéticamente se escribe, ɵl. La o en por se pronuncia de un modo muy parecido al sonido de esta vocal.

(2) I, i. Esta vocal breve se parece á la i Española, y á la Fonotípica ɛ, pero pronunciada breve y de golpe.

(3) E, e. Es semejante á la e en Castellano y á la Fonotípica ə, pero breve y de golpe. Se halla con todo entre ellas casi la misma diferencia que entre el, artículo, y él, pronombre.

(4) A, ɑ. Suena como la a castellana y la ɑ Fonotípica, pero breve y de golpe.

(5) O, o. Casi como en Castellano o y en Fonotipia ɷ; pero breve y de golpe. Es el sonido breve correspondiente á ɵ. Véase el N. 1.

(6) U, u. Suena entre a y o en castellano, ó como o y la Fonotípica ɷ; pero se pronuncia tan veloz é indistintamente, que apénas puede distinguirse á cual de las dos dichas vocales españolas se parece mas.

(7) Ʊ, ʊ. Como la u española, pero pronunciada breve y de golpe.

(8) Ɨ, ɨ. Este signo de diptongo representa el sonido de las vocales a é i en aire, pero pronunciando ámbas letras aun mas unidas.

(9) Ꝋ, ꝋ. Casi como oi en h*oi*. Con todo, el primero de los dos sonidos vocales representados por esta letra, es el de ɵ (Véase el N. 1), en vez de ɷ, ó el de la letra o en Castellano.

(10) Ʉ, ʉ. Casi como iu en la voz castellana diuturno, de manera que algunos la consideran diptongo. Acaso, es mejor tratarla como simple vocal entre el sonido de i y de u, y parecido al sonido de la u francesa. Es algo mas fino y delicado que la u castellana.

(11) W, w. Esta letra se pronuncia precisamente como en castellano la u ántes de a: v. g., *g*uardia; ó como la o en *O*ajaca, *o*igo; pero pronunciando ámbos sonidos con tal rapidez, que no hagan mas que una sílaba, es decir, que la o se junte de tal manera con la vocal siguiente que no se distinga. Este sonido, verdaderamente, es el de una consonante brevísima, y se forma comprimiendo un poco los labios para estorbar que el aliento salga libremente. Los Españoles no observan esto, que, no obstante, es bien perceptible á un Ingles; es decir, que aunque los Españoles pronuncian sin dificultad y correctamente esta letra en su lengua, de conformidad con lo que se dice arriba, y que esto lo hacen diariamente, piensan que solamente profieren una u ú o, miéntras que el Ingles percibe una ligera distincion entre el sonido de estos elementos, cuando se hallan delante de otra vocal, v. g., en *g*uapo, *O*ajaca, y el sonido de los mismos elementos estando solos ó ántes de una consonante, como u, v. g., en *Cu*ba, y señala esa distincion, escribiendo w en lugar de u en el primer caso.

(12) H, h. El sonido de esta letra es gutural, y semejante al de la j española, aunque no tan fuerte como esta.

(13) B, b. Esta letra se pronuncia como en Castellano; pero cuidando de comprimir fuertemente los labios, á fin de no confundirla con la v, y abrirlos sin extenderlos, para que no resulte una p. Los que no tengan oportunidad de oirla de un nativo, podrán aprovechar mucho haciendo que un natural de Burgos, Toledo ó Madrid pronuncie en su presencia despacio, *ba*bador, *be*ber, *biri*bis, *bo*bo, *bur*buja, procurando despues imitarlos, deteniendo siempre compresos un poco los labios ántes de pronunciar la vocal.

Por este medio se percibirá fácilmente que la diferencia entre los sonidos de la b y de la p consiste en que salga de la garganta el aliento al pronunciar la primera, deteniéndole entre los labios, y en la segunda se arroja solo de los labios con alguna mas fuerza, extendiéndole un si es no es; v. g., en papá, pepena, pipí, popote, pupila.

Este sonido, pues, que sale de la garganta al pronunciar la b, ademas del que se forma entre los labios, se llama Vocalizacion, el cual se aplica tambien al de otras consonantes, como se explicará adelante. Las letras que como la p se pronuncian sin ningun sonido gutural se llaman consonantes susurrantes, ó semimudas, y las que tienen la vocalizacion, como la b, consonantes parlantes, esto es, que van en pares, de las cuales la p y la b son las primeras, y pertenecen á la clase de labiales. Esta union en pares de los sonidos consonantes pertenece en general á todas las lenguas, y es de mucha importancia conocerla bien para aprender la pronunciacion de cualquiera de ellas, porque existiendo la misma especie de relacion entre los diferentes pares de sonidos, el conocimiento de la relacion que hay entre ellos, proporciona el adquirir la pronunciacion aun de aquellos sonidos que el estudiante nunca habia oido ántes. Esta conjuncion de sonidos se explicará mas claramente.

(14) D, d. Esta letra representa en ámbas lenguas el sonido parlante correspondiente al susurrante que representa la t, por cuanto ámbas constituyen un par, el cual se forma colocando la punta de la lengua contra el cielo de la boca cerca de los dientes altos, desarrimándola de ellos de golpe; pero al pronunciar la d es necesario hacerlo con espíritu y aliento blando, porque si se esfuerza mucho, se convierte en el de la t. El sonido de que aquí se habla, es el que tiene la d en *d*ama, *d*eja, *d*ime, *d*ote, *d*uro, teniendo mucho cuidado de evitar el provincialismo de pronunciarla como z, como t, ó como th, en Ingles; v. g., verda*t*, verda*z*, en vez de verda*d*.

(15) Ȼ, ȼ. Este signo fonotípico es perfectamente equivalente á la ch castellana en *ch*aleco, *ch*epe, *ch*ico, *ch*ocho, *ch*upa, como se puede ver en las voces *ch*aff (paja), *ch*ess (ajedrez), *ch*in (barba), *ch*op (chuleta); con todo, debe observarse, que este no es un sonido simple, y que puede distinguirse en dos elementos ó sonidos simples, el primero de los cuales es el de la t, tal cual se oye en la voz *t*ítulo, como se deja fácilmente percibir con un poco de práctica y atencion, observando la manera en que se coloca la lengua al comenzar dichas voces. Con todo, el sonido de la t dura apénas un instante, y es seguido inmediatamente por el sonido áspero de la s, que se diferencia de la s pura, bien que le es semejante. Estos dos sonidos componen el de la ch en el alfabeto castellano, y el de la ȼ en el Fonotípico. Esta s áspera nunca se percibe sola en Español, como en Ingles, segun se verá en la Nota 22, pero se parece al sonido de la interjeccion española cht.

(16) J, j. Esta letra ó signo no tiene el mismo sonid· que en castellano. Obsérvese que el sonido parlante correspondiente á la t susurrante es d (Véase el N. 14). El sonido parlante que corresponde al sonido susurrante de la s áspera, es aquel que se describe en la Nota 23. De aquí es que la j fonotípica es equivalente á la combinacion dz. El estudiante que haya entendido perfectamente el análisis de la ch castellana, y de la ç fonotípica (Nota 15), no hallará dificultad en adquirir esta pronunciacion. El debe comenzar siempre como si fuera á pronunciar una voz que principiara con d, seguida por una s áspera, y no dejará de darle el verdadero sonido: esto es, si un Español procura pronunciar la palabra chico, pronunciando la primera sílaba como si estuviera escrita dsico ó dschico, dando á la s áspera un sonido y cantidad de parlante. Los que entiendan Frances podrán conseguir este sonido prefijando una d á la j en las voces je, jamais, pronunciando los dos sonidos muy comprimidos, ó juntos. (Nota 23.) Este sonido se ha representado en la clave por y, porque la y consonante se pronuncia en castellano con el mismo sonido.

(17) G, g. Esta letra en el sistema fonético se pronuncia siempre como la g en gato, gota, gula.

(18) V, v. Los Españoles deben cuidar mucho la pronunciacion de esta letra para no confundirla, como frecuentemente sucede, con la b. Esta se pronuncia comprimiendo los labios, y aquella tocando con el labio inferior los dientes altos, como si se fuera á expresar fe, y forma un par con la f, siendo la v la parlante y la f la susurrante de un par.

(19) T, t. Este signo fonotípico corresponde al de la z castellana en zape, zeda, zote, zumo; paz, vez, miz, voz, luz; pòr ejemplo, *th*ank, *th*ief, *th*in, *th*ought, *th*wack.

(20) D, d. Por medio de este signo se representa el sonido parlante correspondiente á la susurrante que se ha explicado en el número 19, por cuanto los dos forman un par; es peculiar del Ingles, y solo se puede aprender de la voz viva. No hay en Castellano voz algun que comience con dd; pero si se encontrase alguna, un Español, para pronunciarla, pondría la punta de la lengua entre los dientes, y despues de un corto y suave esfuerzo del aliento, pronunciaría la vocal resbalando en cierta manera el sonido entre ellos, y como en algunas provincias de España se pronuncia la voz dedo.

(21) Z, z. Este fonotipo representa tambien el sonido parlante correspondiente á la s consonante, susurrante ó semi-muda, por cuanto las dos forman un par. No hay en Castellano sonido que le cuadre, pero puede aplicársele el de la z francesa en zèle.

(22) Σ, ʃ. El sonido de la s áspera es representado por este signo; como queda explicado en la Nota 15. Es semejante al de ch (chez) en frances.

(23) Ʒ, ʒ. Este signo representa el sonido parlante, correspondiente al que antecede susurrante ó semimudo, porque los dos forman un par. Es semejante al de la j frances, en Jean.

(24) R, r. Este signo no difiere del castellano cuando se pronuncia suavemente; en pocas combinaciones tiene el sonido fuerte español, y al fin de las voces es siempre suave.

(25) M, m. El sonido de la m se forma cerrando fuertemente los labios ántes de pronunciar la vocal siguiente, con mas fuerza que en la b ó p. Los Españoles deben cuidar mucho de pronunciarla con atencion, á fin de no confundirla con la n.

(26) N, n. La n tiene un solo sonido. Algunos Españoles le dan el sonido de una vocal nasal; pero este debe evitarse.

(27) Ŋ, ŋ. Este signo fonético representa el de la n formado en la boca, como el de la c y g (Véase N. 17) Es perceptible en ámbas lenguas; pero en la Castellana no tiene tipo para distinguirle. Se oye distintamente en blanco, tengo.

El autor se considera obligado á declarar, que la precedente explicacion de los diferentes sonidos de las letras inglesas la ha recibido del erudito Mr. Stephen Pearl Andrews, sugeto muy versado en las lenguas modernas, promotor del sistema fonético en los Estados Unidos, y editor del papel semanario titulado el Fonetic Propagandist, cuya reputacion crece cada dia, á proporcion que se conoce la ventaja que tiene este método sobre el antiguo. Al principio parece extraño, como lo son en general todas las cosas nuevas; pero estas aparentes dificultades desaparecen, luego que se experimentan los excelentes efectos que produce, dando un signo á cada sonido, y distinguiendo claramente las diferencias de estos, por cuyo medio se hacen mas fáciles y correctas la pronunciacion y la escritura.

EL ALFABETO FONÉTICO.

En apoyo de la utilidad y necesidad de un alfabéto fonético, citaré aquí la autoridad del erudito Español, Don Lorenzo Hervás, en el tomo primero, página 66 de su obra titulada "Catálogo de las Lenguas de las Naciones conocidas," impresa en Madrid en 1804.

"El Ingles, por ejemplo, escribe segun la pronunciacion de su lengua propia; y lo mismo respectivamente hacen el Esclavon, el Frances, el Español, &c., por lo que palabras de una lengua que tienen constantemente un mismo sonido entre los que la hablan como nativa, se ven escritas con diferentes letras en diversos vocabularios. Este inconveniente unicamente se puede remediar ó evitar publicando vocabularios con letras particulares correspondientes á los particulares sonidos de cada una. De este modo se publicáron por Rhodes el Vocabulario de la lengua annamítica ó tanquina, y por Ruiz el de la guaraní ó paraguaya. Estos vocabularios, que deben servir de ejemplar para los que con acierto se publiquen en todas las lenguas, se imprimieron en letra romana, que llamamos de molde, uniendo á algunas letras figuras ó señales que denotasen sus particulares pronunciaciones. Las letras romanas no bastan para escribir las palabras de otras lenguas, que tengan mas ó diversas pronunciaciones que el Latin; por lo que es necesario que aumentémos ó variémos dichas letras con acentos ú otras señales. . . . . La formacion de esta clase de vocabularios sería utilísima."

NOTA.

Los signos fonéticos, á primera vista, parecen ciertamente extraños; y han llegado ya á oidos del autor algunas críticas mofándose de ellos, y desechándolos por la aparente dificultad que presentan. Alegan que requieren dos esfuerzos, el de aprender á conocerlos, y el de adquirir por su medio el sonido que representan; pero esto no los hace ménos útiles; debiendo tenerse presente que no hay cosa alguna buena, que no cueste trabajo el conseguirla; y que las dificultades aparentes no deben retraer á los estudiosos de procurar superarlas; pues nada se logra sin fatiga. Con el objeto de alentar á los que deseen aprovecharse de estos nuevos signos para conseguir una buena pronunciacion Inglesa, considera el autor muy á propósito el siguiente Apólogo.

El Muchacho y el Castaño.

Divirtiéndose unos muchachos en una huerta, vieron por la primera vez un castaño lleno de fruta. Chicos, dijo uno de ellos, ¿no veis que manzanas llenas de bello cuelgan de las ramas? A mí me da el corazon que son una cosa buena! Veámoslo.

Al momento comienzan el ataque: unos al pié del árbol se esfuerzan por subir á él; otros apuestan derribar las castañas á pedradas; pero á pénas tocan las pocas que caen, cuando las sacuden de los dedos diciendo: ¡Cáspita! como pinchan! seguramente no son buenas para nada; y luego se marcharon.

Uno de ellos, mas sufrido que los demas, levanta con cuidado uno de los capullos lleno de espinas, le vuelve y revuelve entre las manos procurando abrirle, y llevando de camino algunas picaduras. Tanto trabajó, que al fin logró romper la corteza que cubría el fruto. Lleno de alegría llamó luego á sus compañeros, diciéndoles: Vénid, son castañas. Al oir esto corrieron todos á él, y echaron á tierra muchísimas, con las cuales llenaron sus faltriqueras y sus pañuelos, y se regalaron por muchos dias.

Saboreándose con ellas se decian: ¡Cuanto habriamos perdido, si hubieramos temido las espinas que nos presentaba el capullo de estas castañas! "Lo mismo sucede en los estudios: los primeros pasos son trabajosos; pero la constante aplicacion vence todas las dificultades, y cuando lleguemos á coger el fruto, verémos muy recompensadas nuestras fatigas."

El alfabeto fonético no ofrece dificultad que no sea fácilmente superable, con un poco de estudio y aplicacion, como se verá por la recapitulacion de él, contenida en las siguientes "Reglas."

ɛ ɛda; a hé; ɑ ɑla; ɵ por; ɔ ɔro; ɯ ɯno.—i idea; e esté; ɑ así; o osó; u opa; ɯ fumó.—ɨ aire; ɔ voy; ɤ aula; ɥ ɥiuda; y yerba; w gwapo; h jaco; ç chico; j yema; t zapa; d dedo; z zèle (Fr.); ʃ chez; (Fr.); ʒ Jean; ŋ saŋgre.

1. El lector que quiera aprovecharse de la ventaja y facilidad que proporciona la escritura fonética, y por su medio adquirir la verdadera pronunciacion de la lengua Inglesa, deberá advertir que la clave que se halla á la cabeza de cada página indica los sonidos que las vocales y diptongos tienen en ingles, correspondientes exactamente á las vocales y diptongos, que en las voces españolas están impresos en letra cursiva, á saber:—

ɛ, ɛda; a, hé; ɑ, ɑla; ɔ, ɔro; ɯ, ɯno; y, yerba; w, gwapo;—ɨ, aire; ɤ, aula.

2. Las siguientes consonantes de la clave corresponden tambien exactamente á las mismas letras en Español y Frances, marcadas con caractéres cursivos en las voces siguientes:—

h, jáco; ç, chico; t, zapa; ŋ, saŋgre; z, zèle (Fr.); ʃ, chez (Fr.); ʒ, Jean (Fr.).

3. Las letras cursivas en las voces siguientes de la misma clave no dan exactamente el mismo sonido que sus correspondientes tienen en Ingles; (Véanse las Notas precedentes 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, y 9,) pero son las que en castellano se aproximan mas á los sonidos ingleses: y si el lector se aplica con atencion á compararlos, adquirirá una pronunciacion muy poco diferente de la de un nativo Ingles ó Americano, y bastantemente exacta para ser entendido:—

ɵ, por; i, idea; e, esté; ɑ, así; o, osó; u, opa; ɯ, fumó; ɔ, voy; ɥ, ɥiuda, (Véase la nota (10) en la página precedente.)

4. Las observaciones hechas en el número 3 deben aplicarse tambien á las consonantes j y d; v. g., en yema, dedo. (Véanse las Notas 16 y 20.)

5. Las demas letras consonantes que no se hallan en la clave á la cabeza de cada página (v. g., p, b, t, d, c, g, f, v, s, r, l, m, n), corresponden exactamente en su sonido á las castellanas.

6. Deben exceptuarse la c y la g; porque en este caso la primera suena como qu ántes de i y e; v. g., ciŋ (King) quing; ce (Key) qui; y la segunda como gu ántes de las mismas letras; v. g., giv (give) guiv; get (get) guet. Deberá cuidarse de no dar nunca á estas letras el sonido ceceoso y gutural que tienen en cecina, gengibre.

A NEW DICTIONARY

OF THE

SPANISH AND ENGLISH LANGUAGES

ENGLISH AND SPANISH—INGLES Y CASTELLANO.

A [a] Primera letra del alfabeto y de las cinco vocales, tiene cuatro sonidos distintos en ingles: el primero como la e en castellano, aunque alargada de modo que se parece algo al diptongo ei, como en fate, face, waste, etc.; el segundo como la á larga en castellano, en far; el tercero participa del sonido de o y a indistinto, cual se oye en fall, wall; y el cuarto es como una a breve en fat.

A, articulo indefinido singular, significa un ó una en castellano, v. g., A man, un hombre; pero cuando precede á algun nombre que empieza con vocal ó h no aspirada, se convierte en an; v. g., An ox, un buey; an hour, una hora. Muchas veces se pospone; v. g., Such a man, Un tal hombre.

A algunas veces es nombre substantivo, como, A great A, Una A grande.

A se halla á veces delante del participio activo, para denotar la accion de alguna cosa; v. g., A hunting Chloe went, Cloe fué á cazar. A muchas veces denota proporcion, como, Six thousand a year, Seis mil libras esterlinas, ó seis mil pesos, al año ó cada año. A se halla usado en lugar de in; v. g., To be abed, estar en cama.
